Father-Son Banquet Held

The Robert E. Lee Chapter of Future Farmers of America held its annual father-son banquet in the Elementary School cafeteria March 17, at 7 P. M. Myron Richardson, chapter president, served as master of ceremonies for the banquet.

Floyd Coleman, Jr., chapter chaplain, gave the invocation. After the meal and the opening ceremony, by the chapter officers, Hunter Tolley, Jr., chapter Sentinel, gave the welcome, Tommy Drinkard followed up the welcome by introducing guests. Among those introduced were State Senator C. T. Moses; Dr. William Pennington, member of the House of Delegates; Mr. W. C. Dudley, area supervisor of vocational agriculture, and representatives from local businesses supporting the chapter.

Presentation of special FFA awards were made by advisor, H. B. Pack. Mr. Bernard Richardson and Mr. Newton Jennings were given the Honorary Chapter Farmer Degree. Myron Richardson, chapter president, received the Star Chapter Farmer Award and the Chapter Public Speaking Award. The Farm Mechanics and Dairy Farming Awards were won by Henry Covington. Louis Moore, chapter vice-president, won the Farm Electrification Award. Floyd Coleman, Jr., received the Soil and Water Conservation Award.

Only speaker for the evening was Myron Richardson, winner of the Chapter Public Speaking Contest. Myron spoke on the topic, "The Future Farmers' Challenge."

Entertainment numbers for the evening were provided by the "Get-Togethers." Final number of the program was presented by Lolus Moore and Leroy Williamson. This included colored slides on the chapter program of work.

Tobacco mosaic, a highly contagious virus, can now be controlled at transplanting time with milk. Either of the following treatments are recommended: (1) Spraying: apply spray 24 hours before pulling plants with 5 gallons of whole or skim milk or 5 pounds of dried milk in 5 gallons of water. This will treat 100 square yards; (2) Dipping: while pulling plants or transplanting in the field, dip the hands every 20 minutes in whole or skim milk or a mixture of 1 pound of dried milk and 1 gallon of water.

Certification standards for swine carcasses have been raised. At a recent meeting of the National Association of Swine Records, the 1960 carcass must be a half inch longer and carry a half inch larger loin-eye and not more than 1.6 inches of back-fat. The raising of certification standards reflects the progress that has been made, in the last five years in developing a leaner carcass.

Plan now for mid-summer grazing. There are four ways cattle owners can meet this need: (1) seed sudan grass or pearl millet; (2) graze one cutting of alfalfa-orchard grass; (3) use reserve pasture or harvest excess tall grass-ladino in early May for silage and use pasture for grazing the remainder of summer; (4) use rotational grazing for tall grass-ladino clover pastures.

The feeding value of corn silage is definitely superior to sorghum silage. In plant separation made on varieties grown in Virginia experiments, the leaf content of corn was slightly higher than that of sorghum, the stalk percentage was much lower (20-30% compared to 60-70%) and grain weights much higher (50-60%) as compared to (10-30% heads). Since the grain is a concentrated feed, corn silage is not only better quality, but with a high grain content more feed is actually produced per acre on corn than sorghum.

Wednesday night, April 13, at 7:30 P. M., a swine meeting will be held at the Appomattox Court House. Roie Godsey, Swine Specialist at VPI, and Horace Mackey, of the Virginia Department of Agriculture will discuss swine breeding, feeding, management and marketing.

In 1959, Appomattox County grew 8,000 acres of corn, with an average yield per acre of 39.5 bushels, or a total of 310,000 bushels.

Corn is produced at high bushel value per acre when adequate nitrogen and water are available. Farmers may not be able to control the water supply but they do determine available nitrogen. A 60-bushel crop will remove from the soil, 95 pounds of nitrogen, 35 pounds of phosphate and 70 pounds of potash. When no legume is used in the rotation and no manure added, the fertility requirements for such a crop would be 700 pounds of a 10-10-10 plus 35 pounds of nitrogen used as a side dressing.

High analysis fertilizer costs less per pound of nutrient, requires fewer bags to handle and is equally effective. More and more farmers will be moving in this direction.

Take a look at your alfalfa. If heptachlor was not applied earlier in the year, the recommended spray is 3 quarts methoxychlor or 2 pints malathion per acre. Chances are the alfalfa will have to be sprayed more than once.

Don't get sows too fat during gestation! A test at the University of Missouri showed a definite relationship between the change in sow's backfat thickness during gestation and the number of pigs farrowed. Their test showed that for each increase of one millimeter in backfat thickness there was a decrease of .15 pigs per litter. One group of gilts received 1 1-4 pounds of protein supplement per 5 pounds of shelled corn per head, per day. Another group received the same amount of protein but only 3 pounds of shelled corn. The limited fed gilts farrowed more pigs per litter than the other group and also weaned more pigs. Limited fed sows consumed 209 pounds less feed. Based on this research it was recommended that gilts receive 1 1-4 pounds of protein supplement per day when on dry lot but only 3-4 - 1 pound per day when on good pasture, and only enough corn to maintain desired condition.
